

BUREAU OF PUBLIC ROAD OFFICES HERE ENGAGED IN WORK COVERING WIDE AREA IN WESTERN COUNTRY

The Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, has, due to the greatly increased demand for road construction, very materially increased the scope of its activity and the number of its employees during the past year, according to a statement issued by the local office yesterday.

The United States has been divided into thirteen separate road districts, including from one to seven states each, and for administrative purposes a district engineer has been assigned in charge of each of these districts. District No. 12 includes all the area defined as district No. 4 of the United States Forest Service, and includes forest road activities in the states of Utah, Nevada, Idaho, and western Wyoming and the federal aid or post road work in the states of Utah and Nevada.

FEDERAL AID PROJECTS.
Projects on which federal aid, or federal aid, from the federal service is requested are submitted to the United States forest service on a proposed cooperative basis, the funds usually being provided on an equal ratio. In receipt of request for cooperation by the forest service, the project is investigated and if found satisfactory and so recommended by the forest service officials it is then approved by the secretary of agriculture and the work of survey, plans and estimates, and construction is turned over to the bureau of public roads for completion. The federal aid, or post road projects are submitted to the bureau of public roads by state highway departments with a request for cooperation. If approved by the engineers representing this bureau, and approved by the secretary of agriculture, a cooperative agreement for the proposed construction, for which funds are provided by both the state and the federal government, is executed. Upon the approval of the cooperative agreement by the secretary of agriculture, the work covering the survey, plans, estimates and construction, is turned over to and handled by the various state highway organizations under the inspection, supervision and approval of engineers representing the bureau of public roads.

LARGE SUMS INVOLVED.
The above sub-divisions of the work of the bureau have resulted in a larger personnel engaged in forest aid work, but on the other hand the larger sums involved in federal aid work, due principally to the character of the roads and highways constructed.

Forest road work necessarily being in the form of development and construction through rather difficult and isolated country, are not carried to the same degree of perfection or built with as great a width as are the majority of the state roads. Locations, grades, etc., however, are so determined that it will be possible to widen and otherwise improve these roads at a later date, when sufficient funds may become available.

FOREST ROAD.
The following is a table showing forest road projects now under construction by the bureau, both by contract and by day labor:

State	Under construction, miles	Previously constructed, miles	Total, miles
Idaho	15.9	15.9	31.8
Nevada	15.9	15.9	31.8
Utah	15.9	15.9	31.8
Wyoming	15.9	15.9	31.8
Total	63.6	63.6	127.2

DAY LABOR'S PART.
Of the total number of miles shown under construction by the above figures, 153 are done by day labor; that is, all labor, stock, machinery, equipment, etc., is hired or owned directly by the bureau of public roads and work is done under their immediate supervision. As stated, all equipment used on work of this character is owned by the bureau and with the exception of some motor items has been purchased within the past year. The headquarters of this district being at Ogden a large amount of the money so expended has been placed with Ogden and Salt Lake firms.

The estimated cost of construction by day labor for the season is $320,000, of which $200,000 is to be supplied from federal funds. Of the total mileage under construction 111 miles have been let by contract at an estimated cost of $662,000, of which $347,000 is to be supplied from federal funds; thus making a total probable expenditure for forest roads during the present season of $1,022,000, of which a total of $649,000 is to be derived from federal funds and disbursed through the Ogden office.

The engineering, surveying, superintending and administration of this branch now requires a field force of seventy-five men and an office force with headquarters in Ogden of twenty-five engineers, transit men, clerks, etc.

EQUIPMENT BROUGHT HERE.
A large amount of equipment has been transferred to the bureau by the war department and for the accommodation of this and other equipment purchased by the bureau and yard has been built in Ogden having 10,000 square feet of roofed area.

Seventy-three motor trucks of from one to three ton capacity, twelve Ford cars, eight motor cycles, thirty motorcycles in addition to hoists, cranes, concrete mixers, tank wagons, construction units or field shops, and numerous items of small equipment have been received from the war department.

A mechanic and five assistants are employed at the warehouse in the shipping, delivering, adjusting and repairing of equipment. A blacksmith shop, power saw, sander and other equipment have been installed so that the shops are now sufficiently complete to handle all repairs or construction of a mechanical nature. The federal aid work by the state highway department in co-operation with the bureau occupies the entire time of three engineers and assistants. There is now under actual construction in Utah federal aid work to the amount of $1,211,355.55, and in Nevada $1,856,747.97, or a total for district 12 of $3,068,103.52. Other projects on which construction bids have been received or which are now ready for letting amount to a total of $891,467.46, bringing the proposed season's federal aid work by these states to a total expenditure of $3,959,570.98. Of this latter sum $1,979,224.24 is to be supplied by the federal government and vouchers covering this amount will be issued and corresponding funds disbursed from the Ogden office.

TOTAL EXPENDITURES HERE.
The total expenditure of federal funds by the bureau of public roads at Ogden for the present season's activities will therefore, amount to $3,959,570.98, or a total of $2,610,242.24 federal funds to be expended by the bureau of public roads for the season of 1920. In addition to this there is an expenditure of state and county funds on forest roads through this office of $340,000, a grant of funds involved in this year's construction of $3,150,000.

As Ogden has been designated as headquarters for work within the above district it necessarily becomes the home of permanent employees, of which there are approximately one hundred who spend at least one-half of their time in Ogden. Thirty-five of the engineers and other permanent employees are men with families and the majority of these have secured homes here. A few have found it impossible to arrange for satisfactory housing and as a result are forced to allow their families to remain at their former homes until such time as houses may become available.

Males' and children's brown sandals with a good heavy upper and leather soles, all sizes $1.25 to 2. Values $2.50. Special $1.85.

ALICE LAKE IN 'THE MISFIT WIFE'

A Brilliant Production

"The Misfit Wife," Metro's new production will be seen tonight at the Utah theatre, served to introduce Alice Lake in a role that's likely to have as wide appeal on the screen as "Peg o' My Heart" had on the stage. Katie Malloy is an awkward little laundress who loses her job because she burns a silk shirt and then takes up a career as a manicurist in a crude Western hotel only to be lured through marriage into the heart of New York's smart set. And Katie Malloy, as played by Alice Lake, is one of the most captivating persons who ever appeared on the silver sheet.

Miss Lake recently won golden opinions by her work in "Should a Woman Tell?" and in "Shore Acres." But in "The Misfit Wife" she finally comes to her own. She isn't a heroine, she isn't a villainess, she's a heroine from real life. She makes you feel somewhat that you're actually known Katie Malloy, and knowing her she makes you love her. When she's in trouble, she touches your sympathies as would an old friend for whom you had unmeasured affection. You rejoice in her happiness; you are thrilled by her adventures.

Her husband in the play is Forrest Stanley. As Peter Crandall, the dissolute son of a wealthy New York family, he has been sent to Paris in order to lead the simple life. The Paris referred to is in Wyoming. There he meets Katie Malloy and there they become man and wife. But back in New York, where Peter's family insist upon good breeding, Katie seems out of place. Her struggles as a "misfit" are pathetically amusing, and her final triumph in overcoming the resentment his family feels at their wedding makes brilliant drama.

Case Against Coast Man Dismissed Here

The case of the state of Utah against Troy E. Bauer, charged with issuing a check without funds, was dismissed yesterday morning by Judge D. R. Roberts in the city court. Bauer, County Attorney Joseph Bates stated, had written a check upon a California bank. He previously had had a checking account with the bank but upon leaving the state had ordered the checking account transferred to a savings account. Bauer claimed that the check which he drew on the bank was not honored because his money had been transferred to a savings account.
